- Housing
- Facilities
- Counseling
- Financial and employment assistance

The New Title IX Rule

Controversial, and already challenged, ED’s new rule is its first regulation addressing sexual harassment since 1975.

The new rule articulates a complex framework for managing allegations of sexual harassment on campus.
The Big Picture

Discrimination Based on Sex: Institutions are obligated to adopt and publish grievance procedures that provide for the prompt and equitable resolution of student and employee complaints alleging any form of prohibited sex discrimination occurring against a person in the United States. 34 CFR 106.8(c)-(d).

Title IX Sexual Harassment: With or without a formal complaint, institutions with actual knowledge of Title IX sexual harassment occurring in an education program or activity of the school against a person in the United States must respond promptly in a manner that is not deliberately indifferent and complies with 34 CFR 106.44(a).

Formal Complaint of Title IX Sexual Harassment: In response to a formal complaint of sexual harassment, institutions must follow a Title IX formal complaint process that complies with the new standards set forth in 34 CFR 106.45.
Key Definitions
New Definitions of Key Terms

- Sexual Harassment
- Complainant
- Respondent
- Consent
- Actual Knowledge
- Supportive Measures
- Formal Complaint
Sexual harassment means conduct on the basis of sex that satisfies one or more of the following:

- unwelcome conduct determined by a reasonable person to be so severe, pervasive, and objectively offensive that it effectively denies a person equal access to the school’s education program or activity;
- an employee of the school conditioning the provision of an aid, benefit, or service of the school on an individual’s participation in unwelcome sexual conduct; or
- sexual assault, as defined in the Clery Act, or dating violence, domestic violence, or stalking as defined in VAWA.
Sexual Harassment

What is the basis for the new definition of sexual harassment?

- From one administration to the next, the Department has consistently maintained that the standards the agency uses to determine Title IX compliance do not need to align with those established by the Supreme Court in Gebser and Davis.
- Without surrendering this discretion, this Department has chosen “to build these final regulations upon the foundation established by the Supreme Court…”
- This Department “believes it would be beneficial for recipients and students alike if the administrative standards governing recipients’ responses to sexual harassment were aligned with the standards developed by the Supreme Court in private actions…”
Does this definition prohibit all harassing or offensive remarks?

• No. Unwelcome conduct must be severe, pervasive, and objectively offensive. But schools can still address such remarks in a variety of ways.

Does quid pro quo harassment need to be severe, pervasive, and objectively offensive? How about Clery/VAWA offenses?

• No. Only the “unwelcome conduct” prong of the sexual harassment definition must be severe, pervasive, and objectively offensive. A victim of quid pro quo sexual harassment or Clery/VAWA sex offenses, has been effectively denied equal access to education.
Complainant. An individual who is alleged to be the victim of conduct that could constitute sexual harassment.

Respondent. An individual who has been reported to be the perpetrator of conduct that could constitute sexual harassment.

Consent. The Assistant Secretary will not require schools to adopt a particular definition of consent with respect to sexual assault.

- Some schools are under state law requirements to apply a particular definition of consent for purposes of campus sexual misconduct policies.
Complainant. An individual who is alleged to be the victim of conduct that could constitute sexual harassment.

Respondent. An individual who has been reported to be the perpetrator of conduct that could constitute sexual harassment.

Consent. The Assistant Secretary will not require schools to adopt a particular definition of consent with respect to sexual assault.

- Some schools are under state law requirements to apply a particular definition of consent for purposes of campus sexual misconduct policies.
Responding to Title IX Sexual Harassment
Responding to Title IX Sexual Harassment

An institution must respond to sexual harassment, with or without a formal complaint, when:

- the school has actual knowledge of the alleged sexual harassment;
- the alleged sexual harassment occurred in an education program or activity of the school; and
- the alleged sexual harassment was against a person physically located in the United States.
Actual knowledge means notice of sexual harassment or allegations of sexual harassment to a school’s Title IX Coordinator or any official of the school who has authority to institute corrective measures on behalf of the institution.

- The mere ability or obligation to report sexual harassment or to inform a student about how to report sexual harassment, or having been trained to do so, does not qualify an individual as one who has authority to institute corrective measures on behalf of the institution.
Actual Knowledge

Who can make a report?
- Any person (including bystanders or anonymous reports).

Who is an official with authority to institute corrective measures on behalf of the institution?
- This is a fact-specific determination. Per the Preamble, possibly supervisors and deans. Schools can identify such individuals in a list.

Which employees must report sexual harassment to the Title IX Coordinator?
- As to employees who are not the Title IX Coordinator or Officials with Authority, schools have wide discretion to craft and implement their own employee reporting policy.
An education program or activity of the school includes “locations, events, or circumstances over which the school exercised substantial control over both the respondent and the context in which the sexual harassment occurs, and also includes any building owned or controlled by a student organization that is officially recognized by a postsecondary institution.”
How does an institution determine what constitutes a program or activity?

- “It’s a fact specific inquiry. The key questions are whether the recipient exercised substantial control over the respondent and the context in which the incident occurred.”

What if a student is sexually assaulted outside of an education program or activity but later suffers Title IX sexual harassment in an education program or activity?

- Title IX would only cover the act of sexual harassment in an institution’s education program or activity, but the institution may still choose address the prior assault through its own process or code of conduct.
The complainant must be a person physically located in the United States.

- The Department acknowledges that individuals experiencing sexual harassment while outside of the country (i.e., studying abroad) would not be covered.
- However, it would appear that sexual harassment perpetrated online against an individual physically located in the United States could be covered, even if the perpetrator were located outside of the country.
Institutions must respond “promptly” and “in a manner that is not deliberately indifferent.”

A school is deliberately indifferent “only if its response to sexual harassment is clearly unreasonable in light of the known circumstances.”

In the proposed rule, the Department offered additional detail regarding conduct that would, or would not, constitute deliberate indifference. The final rule does not include this language.
However, the final rule does specify that a Title IX Coordinator must promptly contact the complainant to:

- discuss the availability of supportive measures;
- consider the complainant’s wishes with respect to supportive measures;
- inform the complainant of the availability of supportive measures with or without the filing of a formal complaint; and
- explain to the complainant the process for filing a formal complaint.

A failure to satisfy these specific requirements could be characterized as deliberate indifference.
Further, the final rule specifies that a school’s response must treat complainants and respondents equitably by offering supportive measures to a complainant, and by following a compliant grievance process before the imposition of any disciplinary sanctions against a respondent.

Once again, a failure to satisfy these requirements could be deemed deliberate indifference.
Does the deliberate indifference standard relieve recipients of their obligation to respond to every known allegation of sexual harassment?

- No.

In the absence of a formal complaint, are there circumstances where an institution would initiate a grievance process against the respondent to avoid being deliberately indifferent?

- Yes. The Title IX Coordinator may sign a formal complaint to initiate a grievance process. Examples noted in the Preamble are threat, serial predation, violence, or weapons.
Interim & Supportive Measures
Interim Measures: Removal/Leave

An institution would be permitted to remove a respondent from campus on an emergency basis, provided:

- that the school undertakes an individualized safety and risk analysis;
- determines that an immediate threat to the physical health or safety of any student or other individual arising from the allegations of sexual harassment justifies removal; and
- provides the respondent with notice and an opportunity to challenge the decision immediately following the removal.

An institution also would be permitted to place a “non-student employee respondent” on administrative leave during the “pendency of [its] grievance process.”
Interim Measures: Removal/Leave

What does the “individualized safety or risk analysis” require?

• “...more than a generalized, hypothetical, or speculative belief that the respondent may pose a risk to someone’s physical health or safety.”

What does it mean that an individual can challenge their removal “immediately” after removal?

• This is fact-specific, but is generally understood as occurring without delay, as soon as possible, given the circumstances.
Is self-harm grounds for emergency removal?
  • Yes, when the threat arises from allegations of sexual harassment. But it is important for institution’s to consider and comply with the ADA.

Do respondents who are employees receive the same due process protections with respect to emergency removals (i.e., post-removal notice and opportunity to challenge the removal)?
  • Yes.
Supportive measures means non-disciplinary, non-punitive individualized services offered as appropriate, as reasonably available, and without fee or charge to the complainant or the respondent before or after the filing of a formal complaint or where no formal complaint has been filed.

Such measures are designed to restore or preserve equal access to the school’s education program or activity without unreasonably burdening the other party, including measures designed to protect the safety of all parties or the school’s educational environment, or deter sexual harassment.
Examples of Supportive Measures

- Counseling
- Extensions of deadlines or other course-related adjustments
- Modifications of work or class schedules
- Campus escort services
- Mutual restrictions on contact between the parties
- Changes in work locations
- Changes in housing locations
- Leaves of absence
- Increased security and monitoring of certain areas of the campus
Supportive Measures

The school must maintain as confidential any supportive measures provided to the complainant or respondent, to the extent that maintaining such confidentiality would not impair the ability of the school to provide the supportive measures.

The Title IX Coordinator is responsible for coordinating the effective implementation of supportive measures.
Formal Complaints of Title IX Sexual Harassment
Formal Complaint

- A formal complaint of Title IX sexual harassment means a document filed by a complainant or signed by the Title IX Coordinator alleging sexual harassment against a respondent and requesting that the school investigate the allegation of sexual harassment.

- The phrase “document filed by a complainant” means a document or electronic submission that contains the complainant’s physical or digital signature, or otherwise indicates that the complainant is the person filing the formal complaint.
A formal complaint may be filed with the Title IX Coordinator in person, by mail, or by electronic mail... and by any additional method designated by the school.

At the time of filing a formal complaint, a complainant must be participating in or attempting to participate in the education program or activity of the school with which the formal complaint is filed.

  - Details 10 core requirements of formal complaint process

- Complaint Dismissal:
  - Grounds for dismissal and procedural requirements

Recordkeeping
Recordkeeping

For each formal complaint of Title IX sexual harassment, the institution must maintain records for 7 years that include:

- records of any actions, including any supportive measures, taken in response to a report or formal complaint of sexual harassment;
- the basis for the school’s conclusion that its response was not deliberately indifferent;
- documentation that the school took measures designed to restore or preserve equal access; and
- if the school did not provide supportive measures, the reasons why such a response was not clearly unreasonable in light of the known circumstances.
If there was an adjudication, the records also must contain:

- any determination regarding responsibility;
- any audio or audiovisual recording or transcript;
- any disciplinary sanctions imposed on the respondent;
- any remedies provided to the complainant;
- any appeal and the result; and
- any informal resolution and the result.
Apart from any specific proceeding, institutions also must keep for 7 years, all materials used to train Title IX Coordinators, investigators, adjudicators, and any person who facilitates an informal resolution process. Further, schools must make these training materials publicly available on their websites.
Additional Considerations
Retaliation

The new rule specifically prohibits retaliation, providing that no school “or other person may intimidate, threaten, coerce, or discriminate against any individual for the purpose of interfering with any right or privilege secured by Title IX or this part, or because the individual has made a report or complaint, testified, assisted, or participated or refused to participate in any manner in an investigation, proceeding, or hearing under this part.”
Relationship to Title VII

Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 generally prohibits discrimination in the workplace, and has been interpreted by the Supreme Court to prohibit sexual harassment.

In the Preamble to the new rule, the Department observes that it “is aware that Title VII imposes different obligations with respect to sexual harassment, including a different definition, and recipients that are subject to both Title VII and Title IX will need to comply with both sets of obligations.”
This having been acknowledged, the Department concludes that “nothing in these final regulations precludes an employer from complying with Title VII. The Department recognizes that employers must fulfill both their obligations under Title VII and Title IX, and there is no inherent conflict between Title VII and Title IX.”
